

ALHHR Business and Human Rights Subcommittee Co-Chair Position Description

ALHR's Thematic Subcommittees

ALHR utilises thematic subcommittees and has adopted a co-chair management structure within them as a means to improve the impact of our advocacy and deliver efficiency and accountability.

ALHR now has a total of 8 subcommittees, including:

- Refugee Rights Subcommittee
- Disability Rights Subcommittee
- Freedoms Subcommittee
- Human Rights Act(s) Subcommittee
- Indigenous Rights Subcommittee
- Business and Human Rights Subcommittee
- LGBTI Rights Subcommittee
- Women and Girls' Rights Subcommittee

A focus on thematic human rights areas has engaged our members allowing them to concentrate on particular human rights issues and enabling ALHR to deliver a key promise to our paid membership by offering them a voice on human rights and law reform in Australia. This thematic focus also serves to increase the impact of our strategic advocacy and enables ALHR to efficiently target areas of critical focus for Australian human rights practice.

The Role of BHR Subcommittee Co-Chairs

The BHR Subcommittee Co-Chairs are responsible for leading ALHR's work in the business and human rights space at a national and international level. They will be lawyers who are passionate about the topic and have significant knowledge, experience and expertise in business and human rights. The purposes of these roles are to facilitate research, coordinate submissions and comprehensive advocacy on these topics, and to present them to key legal and political figures in order to keep the thematic area at the forefront of public discussion.

Accordingly, the following key qualities are expected:

1. A significant and demonstrable passion for the business and human rights in academic, journalistic or professional experience.
2. An ability to network with key legal, political and public figures in order to engage the general public on the business and human rights.

3. A commitment to ALHR's aims and objectives.

The BHR Subcommittee Co-Chairs will be expected to:

1. Lead ALHR's work in business and human rights by devising comprehensive strategic advocacy plans annually.
2. Chair a minimum of 4 meetings of the BHR Subcommittee per annum.
3. Co-ordinate the drafting of submissions, press releases, letters, position statements and other like documents by the subcommittee and submit them to the National Committee or Executive for approval.
4. Act as a media spokesperson on behalf of ALHR on business and human rights.
5. Attend meetings with external organisations and stakeholders and appear from time to time as a speaker at events.
6. Co-ordinate research in business and human rights, including by providing supervision of student project work.
7. Ensure that consistent and regular opportunities are provided for members of the subcommittee to engage in its work. Subcommittee members need to be given the opportunity to participate in the work of the subcommittee and one of the primary roles of co-chairs is to plan 12 monthly advocacy strategies that facilitates this engagement via submissions, position papers, research, ALHR events, press releases.
8. Consistently attend the monthly meetings of the National Committee to report back on the subcommittee's activities and attend the Annual General Meeting and Annual Planning Weekend. Where a co-chair arrangement is in place co-chairs are expected to work together to ensure that there is at least one chair present at meetings of the National Committee.
9. Liaise with ALHR's state and territory convenors to support their local advocacy efforts in the thematic area and organise events.
10. Respond to enquiries received from members of the subcommittee in a timely manner
11. Comply at all times with ALHR's policies and procedures including the Conflict of Interest Policy and Procedures; the Financial Control and Authorisation Policy and Procedures, Social Media Policy, Volunteers Policy and the policies and procedures set out within the National Committee Induction Pack.

It is the duty of a chair or co-chair to carry out and fulfil the responsibilities specified and for which the ordinary member has been elected and appointed to the best of his or her abilities. Co-Chairs will be supported and guided by ALHR's National Committee.

BHR Subcommittee Co-Chair's Responsibility to ensure they are performing their role

ALHR recognises that as a volunteer organisation, we are dependant on people and people's capacity to be actively engaged can fluctuate. Chairs and Co-Chairs are responsible for communicating with the executive and their National Committee colleagues if their capacity to contribute will be reduced for a period of time.

If a subcommittee chair is aware that they will be unable to contribute for a significant period of time (i.e. two months or more), they should discuss this with the ALHR Executive. The executive will determine whether another member should be recruited to assist with duties for that time.

If a subcommittee chair is aware that they will be unable to contribute for a period of time longer than six months, they should either resign or, depending on the individual circumstances, the National Committee may resolve to make arrangements to have an acting chair take over.

If the National Committee has concerns about a subcommittee chair's capacity to adequately engage and perform the above outlined responsibilities, in the first instance an office bearer will discuss this with the chair and set agreed goals for the next three months. If these goals are not met, the National Committee can resolve to remove subcommittee chair and appoint a new one.

Where a subcommittee chair consistently fails to engage with the National Committee and perform the above outlined responsibilities for a prolonged period of time without explanation or discussion with an office bearer, the National Committee can resolve to remove them and appoint a new subcommittee chair.
